The Dynamynd Interview helps employers screen and interview candidates, enabling them to discern the levels of effort a particular candidate normally demonstrates.

There are many intelligent and qualified people in the world who don't use their talents productively. This is one of the most difficult variables to discern during the hiring process, and making a bad hire can be very expensive.

Follow this step-by-step process to discover whether a candidate exhibits the level of energy you need for a specific position.

The Dynamynd Interview walks you through a sequence of interviews, designed to predict the probability a candidate will (or won't) work at the level you need them to. It provides interview questions, advice on how to interpret answers, and worksheets to keep track of interviewees' responses.
